By M. I. N. I

Now that F. Trubee Davison, Assistant Secretary of War for Air, has been nominated as Lieutenant Governor of New York, the question arises whether that office will be continued as well as the corresponding office in the Navy Department, the incumbent of which is a candidate for the governorship of Ohio. Under the surface a determined effort is being made to abolish these posts. The authorities of the General Staff argue that with air officers in its organization, there is no need for a special Assistant Secretary in charge of the Air force. Carrying the idea out logically, it is their opinion there should be an Assistant Secretary for every other Arm. In the Navy Department, there is opposition to the Air Assistant for somewhat corresponding reasons, and it is further insisted that the Line should control every fighting branch. Most of the aviators on the other hand, contend that the loss of the Assistant Secretaries would set them back to where they were before the Morrow Board was instituted. The President, as yet, has reached no decision, and is not likely to do so until after the election. Should he approve the abolition of the offices—and it is being especially argued on the ground of economy—it may be expected Congress will take a hand, and a vigorous hand at that. But even should Congress appropriate for the positions, it still will be for the President to say whether or not he shall make the appointments.

Continental European construction, as well as the necessity of conservation of her forces which the policy of economy is imposing, is expected to produce radical changes in Great Britain's system of naval defense. The Mediterranean Fleet, under the new plan reported, is to be made up of light mobile craft. The heavy ships now serving in that sea will be combined with the Home Fleet, and thus increase the strength of the latter. The Dominions will be asked to increase their financial contributions, and they will be supplied in return with new small ships of all types. In order to reduce the cost of the Navy, and at the same time provide the officers required, there is under consideration the suggestion to close Dartmouth Naval College and permit graduates of public schools to enter the Service. The changes in the fleet distribution are not astonishing in view of the submarine and airplane strength possessed by France and Italy in the Mediterranean, but it is difficult to believe Admiralty authorities will approve the closing of Dartmouth, since the primary instruction there received is vital for the development of the high type of officers the Navy needs.

Admiral Pratt's announcement that the Scouting Fleet will remain in the Pacific has caused a renewal of criticism of the United States in Japan. The announcement was made on the eve of the publication of the report of the Lytton Commission the views in which provoked

Quarters For West Point

The urgent need for sufficient quarters on the Post for officers on duty at the United States Military Academy was pointed out strikingly by Maj. Gen. William D. Connor, USA, superintendent of the Academy in his annual report to The Adjutant General of the Army.

Junior officers who are forced to live off the post because of the shortage of quarters suffer financial worries which "has had an effect upon their efficiency as instructors", General Connor declared, adding that "This condition has resulted in many of the junior officers, best qualified as instructors, requesting that they be not detailed for duty at the Military Academy."

That section of his report treating of construction is as follows:

"Just before September 1st, the new South Cadet Barracks was turned over for occupancy. With the occupation of this building, cadets were assigned two to a room and there were left but 36 rooms where cadets were required to live three in a room. The first floor of this building contains the Cadet Reception Room, well designed and furnished with

The Lytton Report

On Oct. 2 there was released a long awaited report of the League of Nations Commission sent to the Far East under the Chairmanship of Lord Lytton to investigate the Sino-Japanese clash over Manchuria. The report in the main substantiates the two chief contentions of the Chinese. It holds that the fighting which broke out on Sept. 18, 1931, and speedily spread throughout Manchuria represents a use of force by the Japanese which was not justified by the circumstances. It also holds that the newly constituted Manchurian state of "Manchoukuo" came into existence against the popular will of the inhabitants of that region who remain loyal to China.

While the commission thus indicts Japan by inference, it also calls attention to certain instances where the Chinese as a people and as a Government have been guilty of unwarranted conduct. The report deplores the tendency of nationalism in China to assume the form of anti-foreign activity. It also states that the well-known use of the boycott as a means of protest and of compulsion is definitely linked with Chinese Governmental agencies and is subject to a measure of control by them.

The whole report is a bulky document, said to run to 200,000 words including appendices not yet released. While frequently coming to definite conclusions it is couched in the most conciliatory terms. It includes a general survey of Sino-Japanese relations, a comprehensive narrative of events in Manchuria and the fighting at Shanghai, and ends with certain recommendations for the establishment of peace in the Far East. Among others, these recommendations include recognition of Japan's interests in Manchuria, the establishment of new treaty relations between China and Japan, Manchurian autonomy within the Chinese government, consideration for the interests of Soviet Russia, withdrawal

Service Leaders Study Economy Modification

Recommendations of the War and Navy Departments as to modification of the Economy Act together with proposals as to further governmental economies were submitted to the Bureau of the Budget this morning for study. The reports, made at the request of Senator Jones, chairman of the Senate Committee on Appropriations, will go to that Committee after perusal by the Budget.

The recommendations will advocate lifting the inequitable pay "freeze" and denial of use of accumulative leave, but will take no stand upon the matter of the payless furlough, it is understood.

Senator Jones, in a letter received by the heads of all Government departments this week, asked their "opinion and recommendation" relative to modifications in the admittedly poorly drawn Economy Act and "where and how any further economies in governmental expenditures can be wisely effected." The appropriations committee chairman heads a special body appointed by the Senate last session to consider the two subjects upon which they requested reports.

These letters were addressed to Secretaries Hurley and Adams and the others personally, and their views will necessarily be submitted to him by them. However, at the direction of the President, each department is sending its reply to the Budget for correlation and analysis. Also, it is said, suggestions as additional economies may be of value in the study being made by the Bureau of the Budget as to possible consolidations of governmental agencies.

This study, directed by a provision in the Economy Act, has been going forward under the direction of Director J. Clawson Roop, but apparently little has been done under the authority to consolidate non-military activities of the Army and Navy. The act directed the President to submit recommendations to Congress as to general reorganization of the executive departments, and in certain specific instances, of which the War-Navy activities "not of a purely military character," was one, authorized him to proceed without submission to Congress.

No data has been furnished to the White House or to the Budget in reference to any reorganization plans, nor has any information been asked of them. Whether the Budget is proceeding with a study without reference to War and Navy Departments is not known as a cloak of secrecy has been thrown around the entire reorganization probe. Director Roop meets all inquiries with a smile and a shake of the head, answering only the question as to whether there was any study being made at all, with, "We'd hardly disregard an order of the President of the United States."

Meanwhile, hearings of the service budgets are going forward. The Navy has been before the Budget with its estimates for 1934 the past week. It expects to be finished by Oct. 12. The Army will follow directly and will appear before the Bureau continuously through Oct. 22.

Following appears the text of the letters to Secretaries Hurley and Adams

Effect of U. S. Arms Proposals Analyzed

Toward the end of the first session of the General Disarmament Conference which met in Geneva this year, President Hoover's proposal that armaments of the participating nations be drastically reduced was presented to the gathering by Ambassador Gibson.

Briefly summarized the proposal asked the abolition of all tanks, chemical warfare, large mobile guns and bombing planes; reduction of land armies by one-third of the strength now maintained over and above a "police complement" of 100,000 soldiers for every 65 million inhabitants; reduction of battleship and submarine quotas by a third under existing treaty quotas; and reduction of aircraft carrier, cruiser and destroyer quotas by one-fourth under existing quotas. (France and Italy to reduce from the quotas proposed but not accepted at the London Naval Conference.)

The immediate effect of the Hoover proposal was to breathe new life into the sessions which were in danger of bogging down in a mire of words which in a few cases expressed fundamental differences of view and of aim.

These fundamental differences have by no means been reconciled. Nevertheless, before recessing, the conference was able to pass a resolution expressing its intention of materially reducing armaments at its future sessions and along specified lines, many of which were embodied in the Hoover proposal.

To some of the more sweeping suggestions made by the President, the British and other delegations took exception. The proposal, however, was not made in any take-it-or-leave-it spirit and the possibility of acceptable compromise has been maintained.

Acceptance of the Hoover proposal would mean, in concrete terms, diverting a large sum, perhaps approaching a billion dollars, from armament expenditures into other channels, for, disregarding pacifist exaggerations, one of the American technical advisers to the Geneva Conference has recently estimated world expenditures for armaments at about four billion dollars in 1930 as contrasted with two and a half billion dollars in 1913.

Different countries would be differently affected. Due allowance would have to be made for Colonial administration. But under the population test applied to Germany in the Versailles treaty we would have these typical results:

Belgium: Population 8,130,000; colonial population estimated, 13,485,000; total effectives in land army, 86,384. Under Hoover proposal Belgium would be entitled to a "police complement" of about 33,000 soldiers. An immediate reduction of one-third of the remainder, or 17,000 men, would be called for.

Czechoslovakia: Population 14,726,000; total effectives in land army 138,788. Hoover "police complement," about 18,000. Immediate reduction called for, 40,000.

France: Population, 41,400,000; colonial population estimated 62,000,000; land armed forces, about 520,000. Hoover "police complement" would be about

Addition of Cultural Courses to Naval Academy Curriculum Praised By Press

The recent announcement that more time would be devoted to the instruction of "cultural courses" at the Naval Academy received warm praise by the editors of American newspapers. With only a small minority condemning the departure from "practical" work, the press prophesied that better naval commanders would result from the adoption of a more liberal and less technical Academy course of training.

"It's about time," comments the New York Wall Street Journal of the announcement of the addition of cultural courses. "But," adds the financial organ, "international law is to be dropped and 'will henceforth be considered a post-graduate subject.' Here the cat—and not the one that Dick Deadeye sang about—crawls out of the bag. Post-graduate instruction in international law for more broadly cultured navy officers can mean nothing else than that the Navy Department envisages bigger and better naval limitation conferences, wherein our representatives shall display a broader leadership than did the more narrowly educated technicians who spoke for us at the London and Washington conferences."

"The decision of the officials of the Navy Academy at Annapolis, to increase the amount of history, economics, political economy and literature taught midshipmen is a correction of past narrowness that will be good for the future Navy personnel," states the Detroit Free Press. "Education is something more than mere acquisition of facts. The young naval graduates face many years of subordinate service during which they may continue technical studies, but the time to shape the mind to encompass the broader duties of their position is at the first impression. It is far easier for a man of background to specialize in a technical subject than for a narrowly trained technician to acquire later a wisdom in dealing with men and governments, as well as machines. * * * A similar move by the academic board at West Point is clearly in line for discussion."

Declares the Boston Post: "The Navy Department has finally taken cognizance of the complaints generally held against the training at the Naval Academy. For many years, educators have criticised the great preponderance of strictly technical courses offered at the academy to the exclusion of the so-called cultural subjects. Lately, boards of visitors have added to the complaints and described the course as narrowing. During the next academic year, cultural courses will be given a higher percentage in the curriculum."

From the Portland, Me., Press Herald comes a dissenting note. "Cultural courses, whatever they may be, will be of little aid to the embryo naval officer," it is stated. "They will only give him two or three more studies to worry about, to take up the little time he has available to become humanized, like other young men. Certainly they will add nothing to his professional efficiency, which is what the government wants and expects."

"But probably some one attached to the Board of Visitors will be gratified; some long haired 'educator' with political influence will be flattered to have his views adopted. But it will be hard on the midshipmen who are worked now more than they should be and when it is all over often find they have not been given time enough to learn the things they should know for their own safety, advancement and satisfaction."

"The Naval Academy gives us 'Anchors Aweigh' on some of the strictly technical courses and shouts 'Culture Ahoy' as it sets out to broaden the curriculum," states the Ft. Wayne, Ind., News Sentinel. "Tomorrow's Ensigns may consequently be more pleasant fellows to chat with. * * * The new course at Annapolis will probably result in the Naval Academy turning out more successful engineers and navigators—as well equipped for war, better equipped for peace, than formerly."

and Senate Resolution No. 279:

October 1, 1932.

Dear Sir:

I enclose herewith Senate Resolution Numbered 279, adopted by the Senate July 16, 1932.

In connection with the resolution I would be indeed obliged if you will give me, not later than the fifteenth of this month, your opinion and recommendations relative to—

First—What, if any modifications should be made to Part 2 of the Legislative Appropriation Act for the fiscal year 1932, said Part 2 being the so-called Economy Act;

Second—Where and how any further economies in governmental expenditures can be wisely effected.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) W. L. JONES, Chairman."

S. RES. 279

"Resolved, That the subcommittee of the Committee on Appropriations heretofore appointed to consider and report economy measures, namely, Wesley L. Jones, Hiram Bingham, L. J. Dickinson, Kenneth McKellar, Sam G. Bratton, and James F. Byrnes, be and the same are hereby, appointed by the Senate of the United States to continue the study of governmental expenditures and report at the next session of Congress its recommendations as to what modifications, if any, should be made in the provisions of the so-called Economy Act enacted at this session; also what further economies in governmental expenditure can be wisely effected either by the reduction of appropriations or the abolishment or consolidation of existing departments, bureaus, or independent establishments of the Government."

3rd CA Maneuvers

Ft. George G. Meade, Md.—Blue defenders of the Washington area were penetrated by invading Red forces here Oct. 5 in the concluding two-sided maneuvers in which all mobile units of the Third Corps Area took part.

The problem continued the exercises of the preceding day in which a Red overseas force had landed in the Patuxent River and began a march on Washington. Advance Red elements were stopped late Oct. 4, before the Blue defensive line extending generally north and south along the Jessup Road on the Fort Meade reservation.

One of the features commented upon in particular by Maj. Gen. Paul B. Malone, corps area commander, who directed the exercise as chief umpire, was the close liaison maintained by supporting artillery with the assault waves. One platoon of tanks equipped with radio, accompanying the assaulting waves, described enemy positions and the progress of the assault lines to the tank company commander in his own radio tank some distance in rear. The artillery liaison officer moving forward with telephone wire strung from reels carried on a mule was in turn able to relay this information by wire direct to the supporting artillery still farther to the rear.

M.O.W.W. Convention

The twelfth national convention of the Military Order of the World War is now under way in Washington, D. C. The meeting will be concluded today.

Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, USA-ret, Commissioner of the District of Columbia, Maj. Gen. George Van Horn Moseley, USA, Deputy Chief of Staff, Rear Adm. Frank B. Upham, USN, Chief of the Bureau of Navigation, and Maj. Gen. Ben H. Fuller, USMC, Commandant of the Marine Corps, are among the guest speakers.

Ship Building Proposal Refused

An offer of a group of American shipbuilders to finance the building of three additional destroyers until money for their construction could be made available in the next Navy appropriation bill, has been refused by the Administration, it was learned this week.

Mr. H. Gerrish Smith, president of the National Council of American Shipbuilders, made the proposal to the Navy Department on behalf of a number of private shipyards, as an aid to unemployment. The offer was for the companies to start construction on three vessels and finance the transaction until the end of the fiscal year, when under the plan, appropriations could be made available.

The proposal was turned down, it was said, because it would mean increasing naval expenditures, and because there was grave doubt as to the propriety of the undertaking. The construction of the three destroyers to be built in navy yards, as announced last week, was made possible by a transfer of funds for shore construction carried in the Emergency Unemployment Relief Act. Construction of three additional vessels would mean carrying funds for this year's as well as next year's construction in the 1934 Naval Appropriation Act. In addition to the unwillingness to increase appropriations, leaders felt that it would be improper if not illegal to obligate the Congress to provide money for in this manner.

To Attend Conference

Two officers of the Navy Medical Corps, Lt. Comdr. Julius F. Neuberger and Lt. (jg) Gordon H. Ekblad, will represent the United States at the Third International Congress on Rheumatism to be held in Paris, Oct. 13 to 15.

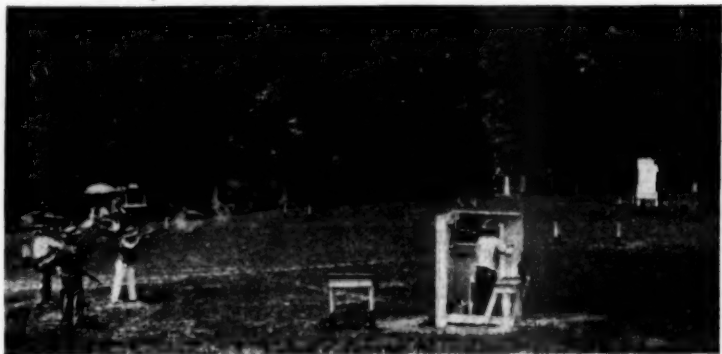

Dr. Neuberger, who is on duty at the Naval Hospital, Newport, R. I., will discuss "Focal Infections" at the sessions, a subject upon which he has written several articles for publication. He and Dr. Ekblad, expect to attend clinics at Munich, Vienna, Berlin and Heidelberg before returning to the United States.

Japanese resentment. The fact that Major General McCoy, USA, was a member of the Commission, and that Secretary of State Stimson, in his Philadelphia speech reiterated the open door policy, further have caused Japanese statesmen and editors to look upon the United States as the principal obstructor to a policy regarded as essential to Japanese welfare. An interesting chapter of the Lytton report is devoted to the strategic importance of Manchuria. It is to be hoped there will be an amicable settlement of the Manchukuo question, but the fact remains that Japan will go to extreme lengths before abandoning the position she has taken. Here is another reason why the Navy should be provided with the craft and the officers and men it needs.

The Lytton Report

al of all Chinese and Japanese armed forces from Manchuria and the substitution of a gendarmery for the maintenance of order, and finally international cooperation in the reconstruction of China.

The Commission suggests that these aims be attained through a Sino-Japanese conference held under the auspices of the Council of the League of Nations. It believes that the results of this conference could appropriately be embodied in four instruments: (1) A declaration by the Government of China constituting a special administration for Manchuria, (2) a Sino-Japanese treaty dealing with Japanese interests, (3) a Sino-Japanese treaty of conciliation and non-aggression, (4) a Sino-Japanese commercial treaty.

The Commission's report will be considered by the Council of the League of Nations at a scheduled meeting commencing Nov. 14. It is presumed that the Council will exert its influence to bring about a settlement along the line laid down by the Commission. There is some question as to what part America will be able and willing to play in these negotiations. The report of the Commission is of such nature as to fit in with the proclaimed Stimson Doctrine of nonrecognition of territorial expansion achieved by force. While America is not a member of the League her moral influence at Geneva undoubtedly will be of the first magnitude. To date the State Department has made no comment on the report.

The report has been welcomed officially in China, although dissatisfaction with parts of it and with its conciliatory nature have been expressed by many powerful personages as individuals. The Japanese have naturally expressed dissatisfaction with all those parts of the report which reflect on their nation and it has been semi-officially announced that rather than withdraw their recognition of "Manchoukuo" they will withdraw from the League of Nations. Indications would seem to point to a long and difficult period of negotiations before a satisfactory settlement could be reached between China and Japan and certainly such negotiations, if successful, would produce agreements at variance with the Commission's tentative program.

The United States was represented on the Lytton Commission by Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, already outstanding for his success in international negotiations. It is only reasonable to suppose that in addition to participating in the preparation of the complete report, he must have been personally responsible for the important sections on recent military operations in Manchuria and at Shanghai. The Commission having dissolved, General McCoy is on his way back to the United States.

taste. It fills a real need for a place where parents and friends of the Cadets can visit the Cadets during release from quarters. The Cadet Hostess has an office at the north end of the reception room where she is readily accessible to the cadets and their friends. Adjoining the Cadet Reception Room at the south end is the Cadet Restaurant, where a modern soda fountain has been installed.

"Sixteen sets of officers quarters erected near the Observatory were turned over for occupancy about May 1st and twelve additional sets will be turned over about September 1st, next. Unfortunately, the cost of the utilities on this site did not leave sufficient funds in the appropriation to complete the thirty-six sets originally planned. During the year 24 sets for non-commissioned staff officers were turned over for occupancy.

"The new filtration plant near the Cadet Chapel was put into use about June 1st. The married section of the Band Barracks, consisting of thirty sets, will be completed about September 15th. Funds were included in a recent act of Congress to erect a barracks for the Service Detachment, and an isolation ward for the Cadet Hospital.

"The most outstanding need for new construction at West Point at the present time is a group of fifty sets of quarters for lieutenants. With the completion of the 12 sets of officers' quarters referred to above, there will still be a shortage of officers' quarters so that at least thirty married officers will have to live off the post and twenty in Bachelor Officers' quarters. These bachelor officers' quarters were never intended for house keeping apartments and have been used for married officers without children only on account of the acute shortage of quarters. The officers who live off the post are of the junior grades and, due to the scarcity of houses in the vicinity of West Point, practically all of them find it impossible to obtain suitable quarters for themselves at a reasonable cost. In some cases the extra expenses

THE UNITED STATES ARMY

Kelly Field Graduates

Oct. 14 will be graduation day at the Advanced Flying School at Kelly Field, Texas, for 107 students, who are scheduled to receive their diplomas as full fledged aviators, the rating of "Airplane Pilot" and the much coveted wing insignia. Of these students, 45 are commissioned officers of other branches of the Regular Military establishment, who will be eventually transferred to the Air Corps; one is an officer of the Guatemalan Army, 56 are civilians training under the status of Flying Cadet, and 5 are enlisted men of the Air Corps who, while undergoing training, retained their status as non-commissioned officers. It may be stated, incidentally, that hereafter, under the new Air Corps policy, all enlisted students will undergo their flying training under the status of Flying Cadet, the same as civilian students. The civilian and enlisted students in this class will be commissioned Second Lieutenants, Air Reserve. Only the civilian students will be placed on extended active duty with Air Corps organizations. None of the enlisted men accepted active duty under their Reserve commissions, for this would have made it necessary for them to relinquish their non-commissioned status in the Air Corps.

All of the student officers are graduates of the United States Military Academy, West Point, New York. Class of 1931, except 2nd Lt. Charles T. Arnett, who graduated in 1929.

With the graduation of Flying Cadet Carl Homer Eaker, the Air Corps will be represented by two officers of that name, this young man being the brother of Capt. Ira C. Eaker, veteran Army pilot. One of California's native sons, Cadet Dolph E. Muehleisen, University of California graduate, has made a name for himself in the tennis world.

Among the graduates are the following Second Lieutenants of the Regular Army:

Sixth Corps Area Notes

Fifteen young privates from regular army units of the Sixth Corps Area have reported to Fort Sheridan, Illinois, as students at the 1932 West Point Preparatory School. On Dec. 14 a competitive examination will be held and three candidates selected to participate in the final army competitive examination to be held March 7, 1933.

Brig. Gen. Frank C. Bolles, commanding Fort Sheridan, is commandant of the school. 1st Lt. Louis B. Rapp, 14th Cav., is assistant commandant and 2nd Lt. Alfred G. Gay, 61st CA, instructor.

Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commanding the Sixth Corps Area, was the speaker at the Ad-Men's Post, American Legion luncheon at the Sherman Hotel, Chicago, Sept. 26. General Parker explained the action taken in favor of national defense by the recent National Convention of the American Legion at which he was a delegate representing the Illinois Department. General Parker, accompanied by Lt. Col. Francis A. Ruggles, assistant chief of staff, G-3, conducted a tactical inspection and inspection of combat firing of the 3rd Battalion, 2nd Infantry, stationed at Ft. Brady, Mich., Sept. 27. The inspection was held at the Rexford Rifle Range, the troops being under command of Maj. Medoram Crawford, commanding Ft. Brady. General Parker made a tactical inspection and inspection of combat firing of the 1st Battalion, 2nd Infantry, and the 1st Squadron, 14th Cav., at Ft. Sheridan, Ill., on Sept. 30. The 61st Coast Artillery (Anti-Aircraft), from Ft. Sheridan, Illinois, arrived at Scott Field, Ill., Sept. 23, where it will remain until about October 20, during which time it will engage in searchlight drills and other maneuvers with the aircraft at that station.

There are about 242 enlisted men and 15 officers in the regiment, which is commanded by Lt. Col. J. A. Green. The regiment made the march to Scott Field in 55 motor vehicles, leaving Ft. Sheridan Sept. 20.

Demonstrate Christie Tanks

Ft. Benning, Ga.—Demonstrations of the newest Christie model tank have been concluded at The Infantry School and Mr. Christie has departed for Linden, N. J.

Mr. Christie staged a demonstration for students of The Infantry School, and members of the Infantry Board and Department of Experiment. These consisted principally of exhibitions of speed on tracks and crossing of obstacles. The officers and other spectators were much impressed by the remarkable speed of the new tank, and the rapidity with which it attained its maximum speed of sixty-five miles on tracks from a standing start. Maj. Gen. Campbell King witnessed the demonstrations and also rode as a passenger during one of the exhibitions.

America is counting cylinders and AMERICA PREFERS THE SIX

Since January first, buyers have chosen more six-cylinder Chevrolets than any other type of motor car

When buying a low-priced car, do as America is doing: Count cylinders! And you'll say, as America is saying: "SIX! No more. No less!" America is saying that in the most convincing way it could possibly be said! With SALES! Since January 1st, the public has purchased more Chevrolets than any other type of automobile.

Why? America counted cylinders and came to this conclusion: six is the ideal number for a car of lowest price! No more, because an engine with extra cylinders is bound to cost more for gas, oil and upkeep. No less, because six is the smallest number of cylinders you can have in a car and yet avoid the undesirable effects of inherent vibration.

A six, as Chevrolet builds it, is the happy medium between two ex- tremes. It gives unexcelled economy. No other motor car engine in America today costs so little for gas, oil and upkeep. It gives built-in smoothness. From 6 miles an hour to 65 or 70, Chevrolet is quietly, comfortably, enjoyably smooth. And because of this smoothness—plus the fact that the whole car is so solidly, ruggedly built—Chevrolet is a low-priced automobile that really stands up. It's a good, reliable, economical car the day you buy it . . . and it keeps on being good, reliable, economical after 5,000—10,000—15,000 miles of driving.

In addition, Chevrolet is a modern car, with Free Wheeling, Syncro-Mesh gear-shifting, Fisher bodies—and many other advanced features. Be cylinder-wise! Follow America's lead and make your next low-priced car a six—a Chevrolet Six! Unless you do, you can't expect the smoothness, economy and lasting satisfaction to which your money rightfully entitles you.

All prices f. o. b. Flint, Mich. Special equipment extra. Low delivered prices and easy G.M.A.C. terms.

SIX CYLINDERS

NO MORE—NO LESS

For GREATEST ECONOMY

and BUILT-IN SMOOTHNESS

With more than six cylinders you sacrifice economy—With less than six cylinders you sacrifice smoothness.

Dolphin Shakedown Cruise

An itinerary for the shakedown cruise of the USS Dolphin, formerly the V-7, fleet submarine, has been approved by the Department. The Dolphin which has been undergoing trials at Portsmouth, N. H., will sail from there on October 24 on her cruise which will take her to San Diego, California, for torpedo tests. Later the Dolphin will return to Portsmouth, N. H., for final trials.

The Dolphin's itinerary is as follows:

Lv. Portsmouth	Oct. 24	Ar. Newport	Oct. 25
" Newport	Oct. 26	" Annapolis	Oct. 28
" Annapolis	Nov. 1	" Hampton
" Hampton		" Roads	Nov. 2
" Roads	Nov. 4	" Guantanamo	Nov. 8
" Guantanamo	Nov. 10	" Coco Solo	Nov. 13
" Coco Solo	Nov. 23	" Balboa	Nov. 23
" Balboa	Nov. 24	" San Diego	Dec. 5

The Dolphin is the seventh fleet submarine to be completed of a program of nine authorized by Act of Congress August 20th, 1916. Built at the Navy Yard, Portsmouth, N. H., she was commissioned on June 1, 1932, under command of Lieut. John B. Griggs, USN. Her dimensions are: Length at waterline, at standard displacement, 307 feet. Beam 27 feet, 10 inches. Standard displacement, 1540 tons. Largest gun 4 inches.

Lieutenant Griggs was born in Elizabeth City, N. C., November 23, 1896, and was appointed to the Naval Academy from North Carolina in 1915. He was commissioned Ensign June 7, 1918, and has been on duty in submarines since 1920. Since that time he has had two tours of duty with the submarines of the Asiatic Fleet and has served as commanding officer of the submarines S-16 and S-10. Home, Elizabeth City, N. C.

Other officers attached to the Dolphin are:

Lt. R. E. Blue, Lt. W. V. O'Regan, Lt. D. E. Roth, Lt. (jg) C. L. Blackwell, Lt. (jg) C. A. Johnson.

Younger Men Sought

In an effort to secure younger enlisted men for the Navy Stenographers Schools, the Bureau of Navigation has decided that yeomen 3cl. and non-rated men in training for yeoman, 3cl., are not only eligible for the schools, but will be given preference over men in the three senior yeoman ratings.

The course at the Schools at Hampton Roads and San Diego has been increased from eight to sixteen weeks, and no previous training is required. The allocation at each school is increased from ten to twenty.

Defense Lack Cited

Declaring that the loss of lives during the World War was due to a considerable degree to the imperfect training of troops, Comdr. John F. Shafroth, USN, called upon the Gold Star Mothers of America to fight for adequate national defense "so that other mothers will not be called upon to send their sons to battle against an enemy with better ships, better artillery, better equipment, and better training."

"In that brief period of twenty months we endeavored to recruit, to train, and to send overseas thousands of officers and hundreds of thousands of men," Commander Shafroth stated in an address at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier on Gold Star Mothers' Day, Sept. 25. "The officers who trained the men had themselves to be trained, and the wonder is, not that the training was imperfect, but that it was as good under the conditions as it was. Complete and proper training was impossible, and the losses that we suffered are due to a considerable degree to our lack of preparedness."

"We are again repeating the mistake we made before the World War. The little Army that we have is smaller in proportion to our population than is the army of disarmed Germany, and yet efforts are being made to even further reduce it. Similar efforts are being made with regard to the Navy. In 1935 we will be well below the ratio allowed us, and our relative underage tonnage will be about 3/4 that of Great Britain and about equal to that of Japan."

Cut Asiatic Replacements

Due to the withdrawal of a number of vessels from the Asiatic Fleet and the return of many "short-timers" at that time, enlisted personnel replacements on the Asiatic Station, for the six months period beginning Nov. 1, will be only about half of those required in the past, the Bureau of Navigation announces.

Exclusive of qualified submarine men, 238 men in practically every naval rating will be sent to the Asiatic Station during the next six months, it is said. Three qualified submarine men will be needed. A total of 19 men will be sent to the Naval Station, Guam, which includes the USS Gold Star and USS Penguin, while the Naval Station, Samoa, including the USS Ontario, will receive 22 men.

Oklahoma to Overhaul

Bremerton, Wash.—The USS Oklahoma arrived here Sept. 24 for two months of overhaul and repairs. She joins the USS Pennsylvania, flagship of the United States Navy, and the USS Cincinnati here on the repair program.

The Oklahoma is the sixth vessel to be here in the past month for overhaul or repairs. The USS Texas sailed Sept. 12, the USS Omaha Sept. 8 and the USS Detroit Sept. 14.

The Pennsylvania now is in drydock and the Cincinnati will be drydocked in number one this week.

Repair work on the Oklahoma began Sept. 26. She will be berthed at 6-B until drydocked.

Guardia Officer Wounded

Company M of the Jinotega Patrol of the Nicaraguan National Guard under command Capt. Louis B. Puller (1st Lt. USMC) and Lt. William A. Lee (Gunnery Sergeant, USMC) was ambushed twice on Sept. 26 and twice on Sept. 30 by bandit groups in Central Nicaragua, Lt. Col. Calvin B. Matthews, USMC, commanding the Nicaraguan National Guard Detachment, reported to the Department.

Twenty-seven bandits were killed in the contacts. Guardia casualties were two killed and three wounded, one of whom was Lieutenant Lee who received gunshot wounds on the right side of the head and upper arm. Lieutenant Lee was evacuated to the Brigade Hospital at Managua, where his condition is reported as "not serious."

The first ambush on Sept. 26 was by a small group of bandits but the second on that day was by a large bandit group armed with automatic weapons and hand grenades. It was during the second contact that Lieutenant Lee was wounded. The contacts on Sept. 30 were in the southern part of Jinotega province, the first near San Antonio and the second at Paso Real. The ambushes were made while the patrol was in the jungle and in mountainous country.

Colonel Matthews has also reported to the Department that Lt. Nicholas M. Grieco, (1st Sergeant, USMC), and Lieutenant Perez, Nicaraguan, with the Jinotega patrol had contact with a group of forty bandits about 15 miles north of Matagalpa, Nicaragua, at 5 p. m. Sept. 27. The fight lasted twenty minutes. Bandit casualties unknown. There were no Guardia casualties.

USNR Board to Inspect

The Naval Reserve Inspection Board, of which Capt. Alexander Sharp, USN, is president, will conduct an inspection of Naval Reserve units in the following cities: Erie, Pa., Oct. 10; Dunkirk, N. Y., Oct. 11; Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 12; Watertown, N. Y., Oct. 13; Oswego, N. Y., Oct. 14; Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 15.

The Board that will make this trip will be composed of Captain Sharp, Comdr. C. T. Osburn, USN, and Lt. Comdr. O. O. Kessling, USN, from the Navy Department. Comdr. Stephen Doherty, USN, attached to Headquarters, Third Naval District, will aid in the inspections at Dunkirk, Buffalo, Oswego and Rochester.

Lt. Comdr. M. A. Mangan, USNR, is in command of the 5th Division, Erie. Lt. Comdr. H. B. Lyon, USNR, is in command of the 12th Division, Dunkirk. Lt. Comdr. F. J. Bailey, USNR, is in command of the 9th Battalion, Buffalo, and the following officers command the divisions of this battalion: 11th, Lt. E. J. Leberz, USNR; 14th, Lt. F. S. Gibson, USNR; Ens. R. F. Taylor, USNR, is in command of the 13th Division, Watertown; Lt. Comdr. J. M. Gill, USNR, is in command of the 15th Division, Oswego.

Ens. K. E. Mathews, USNR, is in command of the 3rd Battalion, Rochester, and the following officers command the divisions of this battalion: 9th, Ens. K. E. Mathews, USNR; 10th, Ens. C. A. Day, USNR.

New Quarters to be Built

Announcement is made of the award of a contract for the construction of bachelor officers' quarters at the Naval Fleet Air Base, Coco Solo, C. Z. Construction will start in the next few days.

The contract, for $77,595 was let to Greben and Martins, Inc. of Panama City. A new gasoline service system to cost $31,000, will also be installed at the air base, the contract going to the W. P. Thurston Co. of Richmond, Va.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1932

"What boots it at one gate to make defense,
"And at another to let in the foe!"—MILTON.

THE BUDGET BUREAU is making progress with its program for the mobilization of federal activities. To some extent, it is gathering facts and figures during the hearings on the annual estimates, but generally speaking the orders it is preparing and which the President will submit to Congress in December, are those Mr. Hoover heretofore has advocated. Among them is the concentration of public works under a so-called Public Works Administration. These include all construction except of a strictly military character, and the rotation of Army Engineers for duty in connection with river and harbor improvements. To carry out the President's idea to its logical conclusion, it occurs to us that Quartermasters will have to continue their activities in connection with housing, and naval civil, engineers in connection with buildings, piers, etc. All this means, of course, that the administration will pass to civilians and military control which has proved successful both from the economic and professional points of view, will disappear. That there will be confusion is evident, that civilian direction will embarrass military responsibility, likewise is apparent. Again, service morale and training will be affected. It may be expected the Military and Naval Committees, as well as the Commerce Committees of both Houses, will consider carefully the consequences of the proposal, and it would surprise no one should Congress adjourn without giving the approval necessary under the law before an executive reorganization order can enter into effect.

SIMULTANEOUSLY WITH THE renewal of naval disarmament conversations in London, President Hoover, in his Des Moines speech, referred to the importance of international action in this matter. Concurrently, the news leaked out from London that Great Britain, confronted by the fact that 41 formidable cruisers, 120 large destroyers and 150 submarines have been built or started by continental European nations since the World War, contemplates the reorganization of her entire system of naval defense. There further has developed the proposed conference in London to meet the German view of arms equality, which, if granted, would mean armament construction, and if not granted will mean the absence of the Berlin Government from the Geneva negotiations. The report has spread that the United States and Great Britain are seeking to reconcile the Hoover plan of a one-third air and sea cut with British needs, but this is denied by the authorities in Washington, who point out that any reductions made must apply not only to those two but to all the leading naval powers. It is not at all improbable that the Washington and London Governments will seek to attain a common ground of understanding, but any agreement they may reach will be predicated on the view that it must be generally accepted before entering into effect. What Japan, France and Italy will think of an Anglo-American discussion remains to be seen.

IN SPITE OF SECRETARY HURLEY'S disapproval of bills to relieve the unemployment situation by enlistments for the period of the depression, the suggestion is being agitated throughout the country, and is receiving considerable public support. Governor La Follette advocated a "civilian army of industry", and among others Professor Charles A. Beard, the historian is supporting the idea in the East. The plan proposed is that the "Army" be formed under the direction of regular officers experienced in the construction of camps and the management of men and materials. Members of the "Army" would be provided with uniforms, shelter, food and a small per diem for personal use. In this plan, there is a germ of value which the country should not disregard. Both the Army and Navy need more men. Admittedly, they are below the strength essential for our national defense. Let the Army be increased to 162,500 men, let the Navy have the additional men it requires. By this action some sixty thousand men would be withdrawn from the ranks of the unemployed, and greater opportunity for employment would be created for those remaining at home. Part of the pay of the men enlisted would be sent back to their folks, and help to tide them over the hard times. To be sure this would be a drop in the bucket of distress, but any help is valuable. So let Congress, instead of talking about reduction, grant the increase which would be advantageous to the economic situation as well as to the national safety.

THERE IS A WEALTH OF sound advice in the operations and declarations of George Washington to justify the order issued by the Navy Department confining the speeches of officers of the Navy on Navy Day to the career and utterances of the Father of our country. It is difficult, however, to quote anything he has said which is not in conflict with the pacifist views nowadays expressed, and thus avoidance of the controversial, which the Department has emphasized, must be achieved through observance of the Talleyrand aphorism that language was made to conceal thoughts. Washington was a firm believer in national defense, an ardent advocate of a well trained and well disciplined army, an earnest exponent of the doctrine of sea power. His experience in the revolution taught him the necessity of both arms, and his subsequent observance of foreign policies and the dangers to the United States which they threatened, was responsible for the incessant appeals he made for a country placed and maintained always in a condition of defense. This deliberate judgment, which is even more applicable today, cannot of course, be reconciled with the movement to disarm the United States. It will be interesting to note whether the Navy Day speakers will be able so to present the views of George Washington as to avoid controversies with pacifists who are spending hundreds of thousands of dollars in propaganda designed to deprive their country of the means through which alone it can continue to exist.

Just a Clerical Error

Governor Franklin Roosevelt tells of a young Navy Ensign whose marks in navigation had not been all that might have been desired and who was once set at the task of shooting the sun to determine the ship's position. The vessel was on a cruise and was somewhere west of Penzance.

After a while the ensign delivered to the captain the result of his calculations. Shortly afterwards, the captain sent for the ensign.

"Young man," said the officer seriously, "remove your cap. We are now upon hallowed ground."

"Beg your pardon, Captain?"

"Yes sir," said the captain, "if you have calculated accurately we are now right in the middle of Westminster Abbey!"

The Entire Garrison Went to Church

An item in a recent issue of the Fort Snelling Bulletin recounts an episode, at once humorous and interesting, of nearly a century ago when a church-going colonel was in command.

The commanding officer was one Colonel Gustav Loomis, whose religion was paramount in his life. Not only did he himself attend all divine services, but he burned to see his men there also. The indifferent attitude of many of his soldiers was a source of great annoyance to him, but he found a way to overcome it.

One Sunday morning, according to reports, he assembled the entire command on parade and took his post in front.

"All members of the command who desire to accompany me to church this morning step one pace forward," he directed.

Three soldiers stepped forward.

"Private Powers is a fair reader," announced the colonel, "and he will now read the Articles of War to the remainder of the command."

The colonel and the three volunteers went to church. When they returned Private Powers, who was experiencing some difficulty with the longer words, had got only as far as the sixty-fifth article. He continued to the end, however, until more than a hundred had been read. Then the command was dismissed.

The next Sunday the colonel adopted the same procedure. About half the command went to church and the rest heard the Articles of War. The third Sunday, however, the command went to worship 100 per cent strong, and so for many Sundays thereafter.

M. T. A.—We can inform you that you could make application to attend the Finance School notwithstanding the fact that you are a member of another branch of the Service. Furthermore, at the present time no enlistments are being made for the Finance Department so that the only way you could be assigned to the school would be from your present branch. A few enlisted men each year are sent to the school from other branches of the Army. Application to attend the school should be made through your commanding officer. We advise that you consult with the Finance Officer at your post.

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Selection of Students for Leavenworth.—Studies are under way in the General Staff looking toward a revision of the method of selecting officers for assignment as students at the Command and General Staff School, Ft. Leavenworth, Kans. Under the present policy allotments are given to each of the arms and services as to the number of officers they may send. Each chief of branch then selects the officers he wants to go to the school. The proposal under study would substitute competitive examinations among the eligible officers of each arm and service for the privilege of going to the school instead of having them selected by their chiefs.

It is understood that the matter has been the subject of discussion at recent meetings of the General Council and has met with sufficient encouragement so that instructions were issued for a thorough and searching study of the present and all proposed method of selecting such students.

It is quite possible that steps will be taken to lower the maximum age requirements for students entering the school. Under the present policy 45 is set as the maximum entering age while it is further specified that at least half of the officers entering from each arm or service shall not be more than 40 years old. There is a distinct trend of thought that the Command and General Staff School should be a young man's school and that the officers sent there should be junior officers.

Liberalizing Army Ration.—The study now under way in G-4 of the War Department General Staff looking toward issuance of an executive order by the President improving the Army ration is virtually completed and recommendations probably will be laid before the Chief of Staff upon his return to Washington this morning. As reported in the Journal last week, the proposal is the result of long and intensive study by the Quartermaster Corps and already has been approved by Maj. Gen. John L. DeWitt.

In the main the object of the proposal is to liberalize the Army ration. Under the present system, instituted by executive order of President Coolidge, the components of the ration are definite and inflexible. Each component is specified definitely. This, it is said, often works hardships, particularly when commodity prices are going up and down. For example, beef is specified. When the price of beef is up it is possible to vary the menu by substituting other meats of equal price, but when the price of beef goes down the value of that component of the ration is not sufficient to purchase tasty and healthful substitutes whose price has increased in relation to beef. To insure providing the troops with varied and tasty menus it is desired to have some provision for substituting other foods when price conditions are fluctuating. In the case of beef, for example, it might be proposed to have the ration specify so many ounces of beef "or substitute," thus enabling the Army to provide the substitutes when the changes in commodity prices increases the relative value of the substitutes.

Chaplains' Extension Courses.—An extract of a report published by the War Department on subcourses taken by chaplains during 1931-32 reveals that 240 students completed 7,989 hours of work in 567 subjects. By corps areas and departments this work was distributed as follows: First—10 students, 32 sub-courses, 502 hours; Second—24 students, 68 subcourses, 858 hours; Third—27 students, 66 subcourses, 970 hours; Fourth—38 students, 94 subcourses, 1,370 hours; Fifth—24 students, 47 subcourses, 827 hours; Sixth—12 students, 35 subcourses, 412 hours; Seventh—35 students, 69 subcourses, 861 hours; Eighth—33 students, 67 subcourses, 962 hours; Ninth—31 students, 70 subcourses, 972 hours; Hawaii—1 student, 1 subcourse, 7 hours; Philippines—5 students, 18 subcourses, 265 hours. The work referred to was mostly, if not entirely, taken by reserve chaplains. This is a very good showing and indicates considerable interest. The Chief of Chaplains hopes the record for 1932-33 will show even greater activity. Chaplains of the Reserve Corps are reminded by the Chief of Chaplains that these courses are not only useful for information and increased efficiency but are preparatory to certificates of capacity necessary for promotion.

British Naval Lobbying.—Although the mere suggestion of American armament manufacturers endeavoring to influence the progress of a disarmament conference is subject for a scandal, and caused a congressional investigation a few years ago, such things are apparently regarded in England in a different light. According to an article in The Navy, organ of the British Navy League, the "armament kings" of that country were present at the recently adjourned Geneva conference, and did considerable lobbying for British interests. Indeed, it is stated, that "unless reports are exaggerated or wholly false, which is highly improbable," the efforts of the British munition manufacturers and shipbuilders "positively saved the situation at Geneva."

"Had it not been for these 'kings'," states the article, appearing in the current issue of the publication under the signature of Archibald Erskine, "who naturally and rightly look after their own interests, the pacifists at the Conference might have put this country in a still more humiliating position. For in every step taken to disarm it is always England that is asked to make the first sacrifice. If by lobbying at Geneva our manufacturers of armaments have spiked some of these pacifist guns, I rejoice in their good sense and pray for more power to their elbows. And if and when a Five-Power Naval Conference should assemble, we shall need others than pacifists and politicians to protect the great industries which depend upon a sane and sound guardianship and conservation of the rights and privileges of an almost measureless Empire. Should the 'kings' aforesaid enter the lists for such a purpose, who shall say that they would not serve in that capacity very usefully indeed?"

When it is remembered that a Senate committee found it as a fact that Mr. William Shearer's activities at the 1927 Geneva conference on behalf of the American armament interests were directed at furthering the official position of the American delegation toward reduction of naval tonnage, and that the British position, now as then, was for a larger number of smaller vessels, with either no reduction or an increase in tonnage, it gives pause to wonder. Can it be that lobbying by British armament manufacturers is winked at and even praised in some circles there without drawing criticism, and that it is very close to a crime over here?

Asiatic Command Shift.—Command assignments in the Asiatic Station were shifted about this week as a result of the illness of Comdr. P. T. Wright, commanding officer of the USS Canopus. Orders were issued by the Cinc of the Asiatic Fleet, detaching Commander Wright and transferring Comdr. O. M. Read from command of the USS Paul Jones to the Canopus. Commander Wright will return to the United States for treatment at the New York Naval Hospital. Lt. Comdr. F. S. Low, now on the staff of submarine squadron five, will succeed Commander Read, who was recently on duty in the Bureau of Navigation, in command of the Paul Jones. Comdr. H. H. Norton, who has been in command of the USS Sacramento, was transferred to the USS Rochester.

The former secretary of the Navy General Board, Comdr. T. C. Kinkaid, will not return to Geneva, next winter if the Arms Conference reconvenes, it became apparent this week, when orders assigning him to duty as executive officer of the battleship Colorado were made public at the Navy Department. Commander Kinkaid was relieved of duty as secretary to the General Board last winter by Comdr. T. S. Wilkinson, when named as an advisor to the American delegation to the Geneva Conference. At the adjournment of that meeting, he returned to Washington and has been on duty with the General Board.

Command of the USS Biddle will change hands in the near future, Comdr. Alfred G. Zimmerman, present c.o., going to shore duty at Newport, R. I., as executive officer of the Naval Torpedo Station. Comdr. Mervyn S. Bennion will relieve him. Lt. Comdr. Edward W. Wunch, jr, now at the Third Naval District Headquarters, originally slated to command the Biddle, will take over Commander Bennion's job as commanding officer of the USS Bernadon.

Lt. Comdr. Russell S. Berkey, aide to Admiral Pratt, chief of Naval Operations, is scheduled to be relieved from that duty in the near future. He goes to the Asiatic Station.

Important Tests Start.—Considerable interest is being shown in the Army over the tests now getting underway at Ft. Benning of the new types of pontoon bridge equipment. The equipment was taken to Benning, by Company E, 1st Engineers, of Ft. DuPont, Dela. The demonstrations and tests are expected to continue until March of 1933.

Three types of pontoon bridges will be used in the tests and demonstrations, which will be held on the Chattahoochee river and other streams on the Ft. Benning reservation. One type of bridge, termed pontoon model, 1926, has a carrying capacity of seven and one-half tons. Another, also model of 1926, has a capacity of twelve tons, and a third, heavy type, model of 1924, has a capacity of twenty-three tons.

The six-month test period at Ft. Benning will be divided into three phases, the first of which will deal with the training of the personnel, and tests of the adjustment of the equipment. During the second phase the technical and tactical handling of the equipment will be studied, and during the third phase the use of the equipment in field exercises for all arms will be featured.

Every available opportunity is to be taken to train troops in tactical operations connected with the tests. One month will be allotted to testing the equipment under simulated war conditions as a part of tactical exercises involving the use of all arms. This will include ferrying operation, and the actual use of the various bridges as well as the tactical handling of troops in making the crossings.

Among the technical points which will be studied during the demonstrations at Ft. Benning, are the maximum load capacities in smooth and rough water for all types of military transportation and guns, the effect of currents, free-board allowances, and other safety factors. The amount of training required to familiarize troops with their use, particularly as to whether the training requirements will be greater than for the older types of equipment now in use, and other such information as may assist in determining the military advantages of the newer types of bridges over the old one are other important points which will be stressed.

The tests at Fort Benning are to be concluded in time to permit the testing company to be back in its barracks at Fort DuPont on March 10, 1933.

Film on teeth is dangerous! Just look at film under this microscope

Queer germs live on your teeth. Science links them to tooth decay, gum disorders and many other troubles. Germs are glued to teeth by an ever-forming film.

Lactobacilli are the "germs of tooth decay." They feed on the particles of food that cling to teeth. They give off lactic acid that dissolves the tooth enamel, then devours the part beneath. Finally the nerve is reached, often causing abscesses and infection.

Lactobacilli appear in countless numbers. In fact, the film scraped from a single tooth may easily contain one million living organisms. The only way science accepts of destroying germs on teeth is to remove the protective film-coat in which they live and multiply. Film clings stubbornly. It defies all ordinary ways of brushing.

Pepsodent laboratories have developed a new and revolutionary material for removing ugly film and polishing tooth enamel. It is radically different from any found in other toothpastes. This new discovery shows extraordinary

This is what the scientist finds when he analyzes film on teeth

1. A species of Lactobacilli now held responsible for tooth decay by many authorities.
2. A species of Streptococcus Pyogenes that lives in the blood stream and causes serious infection.

power in removing stubborn film and giving brilliant polish.

And more important still, it is absolutely safe. This new cleansing and polishing material is contained in Pepsodent exclusively.

Economy in the Coast Guard.—Because of the lowered appropriations for stationery, the Coast Guard has discontinued issuing its weekly summary of orders to commissioned and warrant officers. The announcement said, "In view of the necessity for economy in the expenditure of paper due to a drastic reduction in the Stationery Appropriation, following this issue, the weekly record of changes in assignments, etc., of commissioned and warrant officers of the Coast Guard will be published monthly on the first of each month. The publication of changes each week by despatch will be continued as heretofore."

War Rank Promotions.—Promotion of about 250 retired warrant officers and enlisted men of the Navy, to the highest rank held by them during the Spanish and World Wars, will be made next week. The Bureau of Navigation is concluding a search of several months duration among the records of its retired personnel and the complete list of those eligible for promotion under the recent act, is to be submitted to the Secretary of Navy within a few days. Commissions will not be issued, it is said, each person advanced in rank being notified by letter. Transferred members of the Fleet Naval Reserve will not be promoted to their highest war rank, under the act. They will not receive the promotion until placed on the retired list. There is no increase in pay accompanying the promotion and the higher rank is effective only while on inactive duty, it being specifically provided in the act that if a person promoted on the retired list under its provisions is placed on active duty, it will be in the rank which he held prior to retirement.

Return from Hawaii.—Sailing on the USAT Grant from Honolulu Oct. 4 was Brig. Gen. Henry W. Bunter, USA; Brig. Gen. William E. Cole, USA, and Col. James P. Barney, FA, USA, bound for their new assignments in the States. The Grant is due in San Francisco Monday, Oct. 8, and in New York Nov. 1.

General Butler has relinquished command of the 11th Field Artillery Brigade at Schofield Barracks and is enroute to Ft. Lewis, Wash., to take command of the 3rd Field Artillery Brigade there.

General Cole, formerly in command of the Hawaiian Separate Coast Artillery Brigade, Ft. DeRussy, is on his way to New York City to command the Second Coast Artillery District there, which has been commanded temporarily by Col. Frank K. Fergusson, CAC.

Colonel Barney, formerly of the 8th Field Artillery, Schofield Barracks, comes to the Headquarters, 5th Corps Area, Ft. Hayes, Ohio.

Army Retirements.—Previous orders announcing the retirement of 1st Lt. Charles A. Cotton, QMC, were cancelled in War Department Special Orders this week. On Aug. 4, 1932, Special Orders announced that Lieutenant Cotton was, upon his own application after more than 31 years' service, to be retired upon Oct. 31, 1932. This week, however, it was announced that these prior orders are revoked "Lieutenant Cotton having withdrawn his application for retirement."

Orders this week announce that Lt. Col. Nathan Horowitz, FA, New London, Conn., will proceed to his home and await retirement.

Lt. Col. Fauntley M. Miller, Inf., Walter Reed General Hospital, has been ordered to report to the Army Retiring Board, at Washington for examination.

Promotions in Reserves.—Recent promotions in the Officers Reserve Corps includes the following to the grades indicated: Capt. C. C. Sullivan, Jackson, Miss.; Lt. Richard S. Albee, Hyde Park, Mass.; Lt. Col. E. N. Cooke Rogers, New York City, and Capt. Walter A. Johnson, Mount Berry, Ga.

Adjutants General Confer

A meeting of the several state adjutants general was held at U. S. Army Headquarters First Corps Area, Boston, Oct. 5. Brig. Gen. Charles W. Howard, of New Hampshire; Brig. Gen. John H. Agnew, of Massachusetts; Brig. Gen. James W. Hanson, of Maine; Brig. Gen. Herbert T. Johnson, of Vermont; Brig. Gen. Herbert R. Dean, of Rhode Island, and Brig. Gen. William F. Ladd, of Connecticut, conferred with the corps area commander, Brig. Gen. Alston Hamilton, USA, and Col. Joseph F. Gohn, the officer in charge of National Guard affairs, on matters pertaining to coordinating details of the 1933 field training season of the National Guard.

New Jersey Reservists

At the meeting scheduled for Oct. 19, the Council of the Hudson County Chapter (N. J.) Reserve Officers Association will report its endorsement of the proposed CMTC Candidates Club, and the appointment of Maj. O. Baxter, Cav-Res, as its liaison sub-committee.

Lt. Col. E. N. C. Rodgers, as president, holds that the chapter's secondary objective is to interest the voting public in the significance of the "National Defense Program." Therefore, Brig. Gen. J. M. Rector and Lieutenant Hornstein ensure chapter representation at all semi-military functions throughout the county and a hook-up with National Guard activities is effected through Capt. Wm. McKinley, NJNG.

WILL ENTER TOURNAMENT

Ft. Sill, Okla.—An invitation to participate in the annual fall polo tournament commencing October 15 has just been received here from the Ft. Reno Riding and Polo Club and local polo club officers have forwarded an acceptance.

A tentative team to carry the colors of the Field Artillery School has been selected consisting of Capt. C. E. Sargent, 1st Lts. Francis T. Dodd and J. B. Horton and Maj. Carl A. Baehr. In addition to Ft. Sill, invitations were extended Wichita Falls, Ft. Worth, Houston, and Dallas, Texas, to Oklahoma City and the University of Oklahoma, to Kansas City, Mo., and to the Fairfield and Wichita Clubs of Wichita, Kan.

NAVY GOLF TOURNAMENT

Playing through a drizzling rain, Comdr. W. W. Smith, USN, on duty at the Naval Academy, scored a 79 on the difficult Army-Navy Country Club course, to take low gross honors in the annual Navy Golf Tournament, Oct. 4.

Pending decision of the handling committee in several cases, other trophy winners are undetermined. In spite of the weather the entry list was large.

SERVICE SPORT NEWS

NAVY FOOTBALL

Annapolis, Md.—Navy took a 6-0 trimming from William and Mary in the opening game of the season here last Saturday, Oct. 1. It was only the fifth time in 30 years that Navy has dropped the opening game.

Today's game, Oct. 8, will be with Washington and Lee.

Regarding the opening game, it was said at the office of the Graduate Manager of Athletics that,

"Defeat at the hands of William and Mary last Saturday brought out in clear relief a number of Navy shortcomings which need correcting before the next game, and most certainly before Princeton, Pennsylvania and Columbia are met in weekly succession.

"Last Saturday Navy was unable to answer the excellent punting of Captain Halligan of the Indians. Quite often when Navy attempted to punt the front wall did not hold with the result that the Navy kicker was hurried. This seldom occurred last season when the veteran combination Thompson-Tuttle-Underwood stood guard in the line. However, with new material in several front positions Navy was fortunate in discovering in its opening game that the slightest delay meant a blocked kick. Faster, better spaced and more consistent kicking is certain to result.

"In spite of defeat, Navy feels some consolation in the discovery of a new forward passing combination—Chung-Hoon to Dornin. With typical opening season nervousness Navy dropped most of the easy but important passes and completed the difficult ones in midfield that had little value towards scoring. Dornin was the only dependable receiver Navy could find during the entire game.

"Chung-Hoon's passing was good, but Navy's overhead game looked too freshly vanished to function properly.

"Smoother execution on the offense, more unity in the line and better field generalship will be stressed all week by the coaching staff. As the team hardens more active scrimmage may be scheduled. Even though Navy's next opponent, Washington and Lee, was defeated 7 to 0 last Saturday by Davidson, Coach Miller has no intention of considering that game lightly. Most early opponents point for the midshipmen so now Miller, having lost his opening game, is planning to point for some of the next opponents in line on the theory that the early bird has the best luck. With Notre Dame and Army the last two teams on the trail victory cannot be deferred too long. Navy's morale has not been disturbed by the opening defeat—rather, it has whetted everybody's appetite for the remaining opponents.

"William and Mary earned a spirited and honest victory. In all probability the Indians helped the midshipmen find themselves quicker through defeat than if the score had been reversed as in the past six years. Coach Miller opened training with the idea that optimism must prevail. William and Mary lost no time in putting his words to the test."

FT. HAMILTON POLO

Ft. Hamilton, N. Y.—The Ft. Hamilton Polo team journeyed to Oraworth, N. J., Sept. 25, and played the Oraworth Polo team. Play was slowed up very preceptably because of the great amount of dust on the field, but despite this fact, the game was interesting and Oraworth came out the victors—7-4.

The First Division Polo team playing on their home field, Sept. 25, against the hard playing Allenhurst, Polo team of Long Island, took the wrong end of a 6-4 score in a very hard fought game. Even though the Division team gave their opponents two goals, the final score showed that the victors had won just by that handicap.

WEST POINT FOOTBALL

West Point, N. Y.—Champions of the Mid-West Conference, Carleton College from Northfield, Minn., Army's second intersectional football opponent of the season will be the attraction at the cadets' home gridiron here Saturday, Oct. 8. With the Pitt "Panthers" coming a week later to Michie Stadium for Army's first major test of the season, Major Sasse will give his attack plays final tryouts against Carleton. The "Carls" had a strong defensive team last year, being particularly strong in breaking up aerial attacks.

An announcement from the Academy points out that "while Sasse will start his first string players under Captain 'Milt' Summerfelt, there is some question about the left end and right tackle slots. Hutchison has shown steady improvement all season and may get the call over Jack Armstrong. 'Curley' Edwards, from last year's plebe team, is giving 'Dick' King strong competition for the end berth. King did not report for practice until Sept. 20, so at this early date Edwards is in slightly better condition. King's experience in the last two seasons, though, will probably give him the position."

"Army's punting this season is steadily improving, the kickers having learned to place the ball away from the opponents' safety man. Fields and Brown of the first team are both above average in booting the pigskin. With the ends knowing the spot where the ball will probably land, the kicking game will be a strong offensive weapon for the cadets. The second team also has a fair pair of punters in Buckler and Vidal."

In the opening game last Saturday, Oct. 1, Army just succeeded in gaining a 13-0 victory over the Furman University team. Both Army touchdowns were scored by Ken Fields, who broke away early in the first quarter to cross the Furman goal line on a 21-yard run. Joe MacWilliams, quarterback, kicked the point after touchdown.

SCHOFIELD BARRACKS BASEBALL

The 13th Field Artillery "Clansmen" won the 1932 Schofield Barracks Baseball Championship after a hard fought season, thus bringing the pennant into the 11th Field Artillery Brigade for the first time since 1919.

In the last two games Cpl. Roy A. Kennedy pitched for the "Clan" and beat the 21st Infantry 6-1 and 2-1, the deciding game going ten innings. He pitched a total of twenty-four innings in three successive days, allowing only 15 hits, striking out 23 opposing batters, and without walking or hitting a man.

By virtue of the Baseball Championship the 13th Field Artillery is now in the lead for the American Legion Athletic Supremacy Cup for 1932, with only the football season remaining. This Cup is presented yearly to that regiment at Schofield Barracks, having the highest total number of points scored in boxing, basketball, track, baseball and football.

The 13th Field Artillery is commanded by Col. Raymond S. Pratt, who is keenly interested in the regiment's athletic competitions.

MONMOUTH BEATS LEONARDO

Ft. Monmouth, N. J.—A pair of touchdowns scored in rapid succession in the first period of a hard-fought battle gave Fort Monmouth a 13-0 victory over the Leonardo eleven on the Army field here Sunday afternoon, Oct. 2.

FT. WARREN HORSE SHOW

Ft. Francis E. Warren, Wyo.—Before a large crowd of enthusiastic followers of good horsemanship and horses the Ft. Francis E. Warren Fall Horse and Transportation Show came to a brilliant close in the post riding hall on Saturday afternoon, Sept. 24, with the open jumping event.

Lt. and Mrs. Howard W. Brimmer, 1st Infantry, between them managed to take five firsts, two seconds and a third during the two day show. Mrs. Brimmer was first in the ladies jumping and the handy hunter class and teamed with the Lieutenant to annex a first in the pair jumping. Second place in the Cheyenne and Fort Warren Ladies Saddle Class went to this excellent horsewoman. Lieutenant Brimmer took first in the novelty jumping and the officers charger class, a second in the private mount saddle class and a third in the open jumping.

James M. Peixotto, son of Capt. and Mrs. Eustace M. Peixotto, 4th Brigade, proved himself an excellent rider and jumper in taking first place in both the children's jumping and the children's horsemanship classes.

Mrs. John M. Hamilton, mounted on Latent, won the Ladies Saddle Class event with a fine exhibition of horsemanship. Mrs. Lucian D. Bogan, on Don, took second honors and Mrs. Theodore G. Burton on Red Cloud was third.

The transportation show, held in the mornings, was well attended. Company "D," 20th Infantry, commanded by 1st Lt. Clifford A. Smith, took first and third places in the machine gun class. Headquarters Company, 1st Infantry, Capt. Elijah G. Arnold commanding won the howitzer squad event. The Artillery Team Class was annexed by Battery "B," 76th Field Artillery, commanded by Capt. John M. Hamilton. The escort wagon class was won by Company "I," 20th Infantry with Service Company, 1st Infantry, second and third position going to Company "D," 1st Infantry.

Music during the first afternoon was furnished by the 20th Infantry band under the direction of Warrant Officer George E. Zepf. On the second day the First Infantry band played lead by Warrant Officer John S. Martin.

FT. SILL POLO TOURNAMENT

Ft. Sill, Okla.—A round robin tournament for the polo championship of the post is getting under way. Games will be held on successive Sunday afternoons.

In addition to the polo menu for the school year includes practice play on week days, indoor play during the winter as well as an indoor gymkhana, a spring tournament and some outside polo matches with nearby clubs.

The present members of the F. A. S. polo association are the 1st Field Artillery, the 18th Field Artillery and the Academic Division polo clubs represented by Capt. Hugh Gaffey, Maj. H. D. Jay and Maj. C. A. Baehr, respectively. Necessary expenses for the maintenance of this sport here are met by dues of individual members who are divided into playing and non-playing groups.

The bride was educated in England and France and her mother is Mrs. Anna Weber of Paris.

Lieutenant Burrill is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Burrill of West Orange, N. J., and entered the Military Academy at West Point in 1920, graduating in the class of 1924. He only recently returned from a tour of foreign service and is now stationed at West Point.

Purple Heart Ceremony

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Designated to represent Maj. Gen. Dennis E. Nolan, commanding the Second Corps Area, Lt. Col. Evan E. Lewis, GSC, USA, attached to First Division headquarters at Ft. Hamilton, will pin the decoration of the Order of the Purple Heart on ten members of William J. Hennessy Post No. 1938, Veterans of Foreign Wars, at ceremonies to be held in Brooklyn, Friday, Oct. 14.

The veterans to be decorated are: David Bernstein, Morris Brandwen, Gloriano Lazzaro, Richard F. O'Connor, John M. Peterson, Morris Schwartz, Benjamin Fellerman, and Chaim Spector.

Five Civil War veterans and one veteran of the Indian War were among the 250 or more wounded or cited veterans of American conflicts decorated with the Order of the Purple Heart at the Red Bird Stadium at Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 27.

The lone Indian War veteran who was wounded while in that service is Col. George O. Converse, USA, ret.

Maj. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, commanding general of the Fifth Corps Area, had accepted an invitation to officiate at this ceremony, but later was ordered to report to Washington on that date. Capt. John L. Hamilton, World War veteran who wears the Purple Heart, was chairman of the decoration ceremony committee for the Columbus Chamber of Commerce.

Regular Army troops from Ft. Hayes, O., National Guard and Naval Militia troops from Columbus, O., participated in this ceremony.

Chicago—At a ceremony held at Headquarters, Sixth Corps Area, on Sept. 26, Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commanding the Sixth Corps Area, pinned the purple heart medal on Judge William E. Helander of the Municipal Court of Chicago and Mr. C. Wayland Brooks of Chicago. Both were first lieutenants in the 6th Marines in France and were wounded in action. Among those attending the ceremony were Capt. William P. Wright, of Chicago, recently elected national commander-in-chief of the G. A. R.; Michael F. Kelly of Chicago, formerly state commander of the Spanish-American War Veterans; Mr. Paul Armstrong, formerly commander of the Cook County, Illinois, Council of the American Legion; Col. William H. Burt, Chief of Staff, Sixth Corps Area, and Col. Harry D. Mitchell, Adjutant General, Sixth Corps Area.

WO Hoskins to Philippines

Warrant Officer Olive L. Hoskins, the only woman warrant officer in the Regular Army, now at duty at Omaha, Neb., is to sail from the Brooklyn Army Base, Jan. 12 for service in the Philippines.

She entered Army service as a headquarters clerk in 1907 and was appointed an Army Field Clerk in 1916. When the War Department abolished that grade in 1926, she became, with all field clerks, a warrant officer.

Women's Organizations

Rear Adm. and Mrs. Thomas Tingey Craven entertained at a buffet supper Sunday in compliment to Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lyman, who have recently come to Quantico, Va., for station.

Col. Lyman was formerly in command of the Fourth Brigade of Marines in China and he and Mrs. Lyman were in Shanghai when Admiral and Mrs. Craven were there a year or two ago.

Among the guests last evening were the foreign naval attaches stationed in Washington and their wives, a few civilians and a group of service friends of Col. and Mrs. Lyman.

This was the first of a series of Sunday evening supper parties which Admiral and Mrs. Craven propose to give this season.

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. James E. Fechet will not present their daughter, Miss Mary Fechet, to society this winter. Gen. and Mrs. Fechet will have as their house guest this week Miss Dolly Corbin, daughter of Lt. and Mrs. Clifford Lee Corbin, of Chicago and Washington, who will arrive Thursday, Oct. 6, from New York, where she has been visiting. Miss Virginia O'Brien, who was the guest of Gen. and Mrs. Fechet has returned to her home in South Bend, Ind.

Comdr. Norman Scott, who was in command of the USS MacLeish, and recently assigned to duty in Washington, has taken the residence at 2230 Cathedral avenue and is settled there with Mrs. Scott and their sons.

Miss Margaret Ely, daughter of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Hanson Ely, has returned to her studies at the Sacred Heart Convent after her summer holiday.

MERCHANT MARINE

Launch SS Santa Lucia

Mr. Myron C. Taylor, chairman, United States Steel Corporation, delivered the address at the launching of the SS Santa Lucia of the Grace Line at the shipyard of the Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company at Kearny, N. J., Oct. 3. Mr. Taylor said, in part:

"The third of the great new ships of the Grace Line which takes the water today is to be well christened the 'Santa Lucia'. The courage and fortitude which marked the life of the good Saint of ancient Syracuse may well be invoked to guard her destinies, to protect her against the violence of the elements and the hardships of the sea, that she and her precious cargoes may be always brought safely to port.

"This ship, fostered by recently awakened but forward-looking governmental policy, will ply between the ports of North America and those of our sister group of states to the South: she will cement new ties with our neighbors; she will render service to humanity in bringing together those who have been separated by distance and time, and will maintain and expand those trade relations between distant peoples which have ever been the source of welfare and prosperity.

"But this is more than a ship, which today we are called upon to christen. She represents the inspiration of a courageous and far-seeing man and his associates. She symbolizes faith in times of serious depression, and furnishes an example to certain members of the community who have been so depressed with doubt and uncertainty that they have feared to venture their ample funds, and by their action have helped cause a slowing down of the circulation of the lifeblood of industry. The building of these great ships by the Grace Line should stimulate renewed action, as the project has bred occupation and compensation, and is a contribution to the well-being of all the community.

"As we view this sturdy and beautiful ship, we should not regard it altogether as a commercial facility, but should look upon it as the embodiment of the skill of many crafts developed through the ages and passing through a transition in the use of materials, until that heavy substance, steel, long considered impossible of buoyancy, floats upon the waves—strong, durable, readily fashioned to give speed to the ship, to insure the safety and convenience of passengers and crew, and suitably constructed to house a valuable cargo. The art expressed in the design and modeling, the talent employed in fashioning every part, deserve today a tribute, not only from those who are here present, but from all of our nation who are benefited directly or indirectly through this enterprise, and because it is an expression of that excellence of craftsmanship in which none excels the American workman."

"Liberty"

Horatio S. Rubens, a distinguished New York lawyer, has written under the title of "Liberty" (Brewer, Warren & Putnam, Inc.), an interesting and readable description of the struggle for Cuban independence. Mr. Rubens figures in history as a member of the Cuban Revolutionary Junta, and as legal adviser of the American occupation government and his activities in connection therewith played a great part not only in the achievement of freedom for the Queen of the Antilles but for harmonious relations with the United States. In his early twenties Mr. Rubens assumed the duties of legal champion of the Cuban movement. He tells with attractive anecdote of his advice to Marti, Gomez, Garcia and Palma, and to McKinley, Teller and Wood, of his astute defense of the men charged with filibustering, of the delicate role he played in the negotiations with Spain leading up to the war, of the diplomatic skill with which he conducted relations with the Washington Government during the war, and of his efforts to attain recognized independence after the war. The Army and Navy will be interested in his description of the naval battle off Santiago, where he enters without first hand knowledge into the Sampson-Schley controversy, and the land battle for the possession of Santiago. He dwells upon the charge that Major General Leonard Wood was not entitled to the medal of honor awarded him, the discord between him and Generals Brooke, Lawton, Ludlow and Wilson, and denies that General Wood participated in the capture of San Juan hill. For the most part, the book gives personal recollections, and also because authoritative in character, is an important contribution to the history of the United States and Cuba.

Mess Management

Ft. Benning, Ga.—A remarkable record of efficiency in mess management was revealed on October 1 upon publication of the result of the medical inspector's rating of the thirty two troop messes in operation at Fort Benning. For the twelfth consecutive month the highest award was given to the mess of the Infantry School Detachment, commanded by Maj. Thomas B. Catron.

The supremacy of the mess of the Infantry School Detachment was established in October, 1931, when a new system of serving meals was inaugurated upon the completion of a mess hall which the men of the detachment themselves built. The system adopted by the mess embodies many of the features seen in civilian cafeterias, and these, in conjunction with numerous articles of labor-saving equipment, have combined to reduce the overhead and increase the efficiency and economy of the messing.

The system was designed and installed under the direction of Maj. Louis B. Falligant, former commander of the Infantry School Detachment, assisted by Captain Leonard, former mess officer, and Sgt. Samuel Stuart, mess sergeant. Sergeant Stuart has been in direct charge of the kitchen and dining room, of the big mess since its opening, and, during the past year, has maintained his mess at the high level of efficiency which has won for him the highest monthly rating in competition with thirty two other mess sergeants.

Commencing October 1, the mess became known as the special units mess, and in addition to the 425 men of the Infantry School Detachment, it serves meals for an additional group of approximately 300 men with no changes of organization or equipment. Capt. Daniel G. O'Connell, assistant commandant of the School for Bakers & Cooks, is mess officer and Mr. Sgt. Sidney S. Sprague, QC, is mess sergeant.

Joint Army-Navy Exercises

Army and Navy forces will cooperate in joint communication exercises to be controlled from Ft. Hancock, Sandy Hook, N. J., Oct. 11 and 12, employing airplanes, seacraft, Coast Artillery bases, and up-to-the-minute radio apparatus to "defend" New York City against a mythical enemy fleet.

The joint exercises are to be held for the two-fold purpose of coordinating the details of intercommunication by radio between the Army and the Navy and of further developing the teamwork in radio communication between the local land, air, and sea forces in Harbor Defense.

Quartermaster Corps School

Opening exercises for the Warrant Officers' and Enlisted Men's Class at The Quartermaster Corps School, Philadelphia, Pa., were held in Clayton Hall, Schuylkill Arsenal, Oct. 3. Col. M. R. Hilgard, QMC, Commandant of the school, extended a hearty welcome to the new students, assured them of the interest of the entire faculty and an earnest desire to be of assistance, and after briefly outlining the mission of the course presented the speaker of the day, Brig. Gen. Henry C. Whitehead, who addressed the class as the representative of The Quartermaster General.

FINANCE

Financial Digest

The daily average volume of Federal reserve bank credit outstanding during the week ending September 28, as reported by the Federal reserve banks, was $2,251,000,000, a decrease of $18,000,000 compared with preceding week and an increase of $759,000,000 compared with the corresponding week in 1931.

On Sept. 28 total reserve bank credit amounted to $2,241,000,000, a decrease of $18,000,000 for the week. This decrease corresponds with a decrease of $37,000,000 in money in circulation and increases of $20,000,000 in monetary gold stock and $22,000,000 in Treasury currency, adjusted, offset in part by increases of $58,000,000 in member bank reserve balances and $2,000,000 in unexpended capital funds, nonmember deposits, etc.

Holdings of discounted bills decreased $6,000,000 each at the Federal Reserve Banks of New York and Atlanta and $19,000,000 at all Federal reserve banks. The System's holdings of bills bought in open market were practically unchanged, while holdings of United States Treasury notes decreased $5,000,000 and those of Treasury certificates and bills increased $7,000,000.

Pulaski Memorial Day

The following proclamation has been issued by President Hoover:

"Whereas Oct. 11, 1932, is the one hundred and fifty-third anniversary of the death of Brig. Gen. Casimir Pulaski, brave officer and cavalryman who died from wounds received on Oct. 9, 1779, at the siege of Savannah, Ga.; and

"Whereas we are now engaged in the celebration of the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington, under whom General Pulaski served so valiantly:

"Now, Therefore, I, Herbert Hoover, President of the United States of America, in pursuance of the provisions of Public Resolution 32, Seventy-second Congress, approved July 2, 1932, do hereby invite the people of the United States of America to honor on Tuesday, the 11th day of October next, the memory of Brigadier General Casimir Pulaski, by holding such exercises and ceremonies in schools, churches, or other suitable places as may be deemed appropriate in commemoration of his death; and, further, I hereby direct that on that day the flag of the United States be appropriately displayed upon all Government buildings of the United States."

Effect of Arms Proposal

150,000 soldiers. Immediate reduction called for, about 120,000 men.

Japan: Population 64,000,000; colonial population 27,000,000; land army, 260,000; "police complement" 140,000; immediate reduction called for, 40,000 men.

Poland: Population 31,148,000; land armed forces, 266,000; "police complement" about 48,000; immediate reduction called for, 73,000 men.

United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland: Population 46,000,000; colonial population (exclusive of the self-governing dominions and India) 62,000,000; land armed forces, 156,000 including 13,000 under control of colonial governments; "police complement" 170,000; immediate reduction called for, none. An increase of 14,000 would be permissible.

Canada: Population 10,000; land army 4,600; "police complement," 16,000. An increase of 6,000 permissible.

India: Population 351,000,000; land army 260,000; "police complement" 540,000; increase permitted 280,000.

U. S. S. R.: Population 161,000,000; land army 562,000; "police complement" 250,000. Immediate reduction called for 104,000 men.

United States: Population, 123,000,000; overseas possessions 14,000,000; land army 140,000; "police complement" 190,000; increase permitted 50,000 men.

It will be seen from the above given figures that the principal savings on land armies would be made by the heavily armed powers of continental Europe and by Japan. Application of the Hoover proposal to the United States Army and to the armies of Great Britain and other British countries, would not require any reduction in personnel. Indeed, increases for this and British countries would be permitted as well as for some Latin American countries. The principal savings for countries now under "police complements" would come from abolishing tanks, large mobile guns, chemical warfare and bombing planes. For the United States such saving would be relatively small.

Representative Ross Collins, in debating the War Department appropriation bill last spring, said that all but about $17,000,000 went for "pay and perquisites of personnel." $11,000,000 was for purchase of airplanes, not one-third of which was for bombing planes. Ordnance does not devote half of its expenditures on heavy mobile guns. On the whole, the immediate savings would be less than 2% of the total appropriation, unless the personnel now engaged in bombing aviation, chemical warfare, tanks and heavy mobile artillery are to be discharged, in which case this country would be left with less than half the "police complement" imposed on Germany after her defeat.

On the naval side the savings for the United States would be much greater. Immediate retirement of five capital ships would save $10,000,000 a year in operating costs and an average of $8,000,000 a year in replacement costs. Other types would be scarcely affected. The American Navy does not have three-fourths of its quota of aircraft carriers, cruisers or under-age destroyers. There would be a slight saving in submarines. In the long run there would be large savings on replacement costs of all types, assuming that Congress intends to build the Navy up to treaty levels; but these economies would not be immediately apparent. The savings on personnel would be slight as the crews released from the five capital ships should be used to man additional aircraft carriers and cruisers needed to bring the present Navy up to even three-quarters of existing treaty quotas.

Other nations would make much greater savings. For example, France has 93,000 tons of under-age submarines built and building. The Hoover proposal suggests 35,000 tons of submarines as the maximum for any country. It would call for the immediate destruction of 58,000 tons of French submarines. It would mean the sacrifice of what the French call the "poor man's" answer to the British preponderance in capital ships, aircraft carriers and cruisers. Anyone familiar with Gallic thrift will know how difficult it will be to obtain French acquiescence to this part of the proposal.

Likewise Japan, since that country has virtually full treaty strength in all categories, would have to do substantial scrapping all down the line. In view of the fact that the military party is in control in Japan and that it feels its operations in Manchuria and Shanghai are misunderstood by the rest of the world, Japan's acceptance of the Hoover proposals is far from assured. The scrapping of relatively new ships would come particularly hard to a country so enthusiastic about its military strength that it has borne a prodigious rate of taxation for years and has rarely balanced its budget since the Russian War in order to realize its ambition.

Granting that even half a billion dollars could be diverted to other purposes by Japan and European countries by the acceptance of the Hoover proposal, let us consider its effect on world economy.

Assuredly it would not cure this very sick world, but it might be the rallying point in the crisis. The big savings would occur in Europe and Japan which have a combined population of 650,000,000. The effect of half a billion or even a billion dollars among such a great mass may be judged by the effect of the distribution of some three billion dollars this year to some of our 125,000,000 people through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the Federal Building program, and loans to ex-soldiers.

Perhaps the analogy is not correct between savings on armaments permitting tax reductions and consequent encouragement to business and our own loans and expenditures requiring increased taxes.

Perhaps, also, it is incorrect to describe the diversion of money now spent on armaments to other uses as savings. Even abroad a considerable part of military appropriations is spent for pay and maintenance of personnel. With widespread unemployment throughout the world the return of hundreds of thousands of soldiers to civil life would accentuate the problem. With the return of good times this difficulty would disappear. The materials used by the military give rise to employment in almost every industry. Diversion of these orders to "productive" uses in an era of underconsumption would not be easy.

The effect of the half billion or billion dollars by nations, most of whom are debtors to the United States, would not solve the turbulent question of war debts as easily as might appear at first thought. Moratorium aside, the payments currently due the United States run to about a quarter of a billion a year. The chief difficulty presented by such payments is the transfer of the funds across international boundaries. There is the rub. But military expenditures, for the most part, do not present this difficulty. And a resourceful nation can go to colossal lengths internally even though internationally bankrupt as was proved by Germany during the World War, in spite of the fact that before 1914 the bankers thought it was an impossibility.

Notwithstanding all this, the vexed matter of international payments would be eased somewhat by The President's plan due to the fact that every country, including the United States, must import essential war materials.

The British Isles, heart of the Empire, produce little or no petroleum, copper, lead, nickel, nitrates or cotton. France is short in her domestic supply of petroleum, copper, nickel, cotton. And so on, for every country.

In sum total, large amounts are expended for war material as distinct from the cost of personnel, transportation and housing. For the year 1930-31 France reported the expenditure of $188,000,000 for war material, including the cost of warships; the United Kingdom, $144,000,000; Italy, $120,000,000; Germany $53,000,000, and so on.

The greater part of these war materials in each case comes from the home country and therefore involves no problem of international exchange. On the unknown but considerable fraction of the war materials now imported by each country there could be a reduction in orders and an easing of the problem of international payments.

The financial amelioration promised by the President's proposal, therefore, is, relative to the whole body of military expenditure, small but substantial.

The tremendous gain that would accrue from its acceptance—or rather the tremendous gain that must preface its wholehearted acceptance—would be a slaking of the tensions created by the fears and jealousies that exist in the world today.

A realistic view of the situation leads to the unhappy conclusion that early acceptance of the Hoover proposal, despite its undoubted merits, is not probable.

First Division Veterans
